Diversity at The Public's Radio

The Public's Radio is a small and young organization. Due to financial restrictions, we add positions rather slowly. Nevertheless, we are committed to making each phase of our evolution an opportunity to have our staff and board better reflect the pluralism in our service area.

We now have 26 FT staff, of which 16 (61%) are women. This represents a year over year female/male gender improvement of 10%.

Of our 26 FT staff, we employ 2 Latino and 1 Arab-American. Thus, 12% current FT staff are of mixed-race or non-white ancestry.

Our board composition has also evolved: we seat 29 current directors, 19 of whom (65%) are female. Last year's board had 27 directors, 13 of whom (48%) were female. Consequently, our year over year female/male gender balance on our board improved by 17%.

Last year, The Public's Radio board of directors' ethnic and racial diversity was as follows: 1 Hispanic, 2 Black, 1 Asian, for a total of 9% diversity/non-white ancestry. The Public's Radio board now is at 10% Hispanic and 6% Black, or 16% diversity/non-white ancestry.

We are making consistent and increased efforts to reach out to under-represented cultural and ethnic communities when recruiting new board members, as well as to advertising staff openings on job boards frequented by Black, Indigenous, Hispanic, and mixed-race job seekers.

We remain firmly committed to attracting individuals to both our governing board and our full-time staff who share life experiences, cultural backgrounds, and ethnic traditions representative of the communities we serve.
